
WHAT IS WAHI?

WAHI is a not-for-profit professional association dedicated to promoting and developing the home inspection industry within the state of Wisconsin.

In 1994, home inspectors throughout Wisconsin began meeting monthly to improve skills and to discuss with other inspectors what they had learned while conducting home inspections.

WAHI's membership consists of home inspectors, engineers, builders, electricians, building tradesman, journeyman, basement specialists, etc.

WAHI has an established Code of Ethics as well as Rules and Bylaws, each promoting standards of professional conduct. WAHI members do not accept nor offer commissions or allowances for referrals. WAHI home inspections speak for themselves and our referrals should do the same.

WAHI home inspectors conduct hundreds of inspections throughout Wisconsin daily. WAHI members are a great source of business to the everyday professional contractor.

By becoming a WAHI Affiliate member, you can forge relationships with individuals in allied professions that may increase your business.

WHAT IS THE ARBITRATION PANEL?

Overview

The Wisconsin Association of Home Inspectors (WAHI) has contracted with Resolute Systems to administer the arbitration program designed to fairly, quickly and cost-effectively resolve disputes between homeowners (complaints) and WAHI-affiliated home inspectors.

Resolute Systems, an independent national mediation, arbitration and consulting firm, is one of the largest private dispute resolution companies in America. Founded in 1988, Resolute Systems administer mediation and arbitration programs in network of more than 2,000 mediators.

Resolute Systems serves as an independent administrator to communicate, coordinate, schedule and administer arbitration with the concerned parties and their lawyers. Resolute Systems and its employees do not give legal advice to or act as advocates for any participants in the program.

Results

The arbitration process often settles disputes, subject to normal litigation, out of court, in weeks rather than months (or years) and at far less cost than typical litigation.
